

What will you give?

When you think about life's meaning
And the purpose of it all
Does your mind shift into dreaming
And your effort start to stall
If it seems there is no reason
For the style of life you live
It is time to ask the question
Of yourself, what will you give?

Consider all that now you know
And things which you have learned
You will certainly discover
That true value can't be earned
Give some service to your neighbor
And be willing to forgive
And the answer to your questions
You will learn through what you'll give

When you focus and you study
And you read and write and think
And you want some application
With your knowledge now to link
Willing service is the answer
To patch holes in your life's sieve
And Communities will prosper
As they reap what you will give

Chorus:

What will you give?

What will you give?

It is time to ask the question of yourself, what will you give?
